Leading a Digital School is a rich source of information and advice about joining the new 'education revolution'. It shows clearly and concisely how schools can integrate digital technologies creatively and wisely in order to enliven teaching and support student learning.

This important new book informs educational leaders about current developments in the use of digital technologies and presents a number of case studies demonstrating their value and complexity. It encourages leaders to engage in the process of successful change for their own school community by providing guidelines and advice drawn from emerging research.

Contributors include: Karen Bonanno, Dr Roger Hayward, Greg Whitby, Mal Lee, Michael Gaffney and others.
